"I realized that climate change affects women and poorer farmers like us more severely. We have fewer resources to adopt climate-resilient practices and limited access to climate-smart technologies, which makes it harder for us to cope. Hopefully, the climate adaptation plan will support us in overcoming these challenges and better prepare us for future changes."

"Getting married at 13, it put an abrupt stop to my education and brought many challenges, but the UDAAN program has given me a second chance. Initially, I struggled to adapt to the learning environment, but the support from CARE Nepal and Aawaaj (a local NGO), along with their effective teaching methods, made all the difference. I now dream of passing my Grade 12 exams, pursuing higher education, and developing entrepreneurial skills. Thanks to initiatives like Balika Shabha, I've gained confidence and essential life skills. I am truly grateful for this opportunity to rewrite my story and build a better future for myself and my son."

"HPP- Humanitarian Partnership Platform- functions as a consortium of organizations specializing in various sectors and advocating for rights-based agendas. For example, Women's Human Rights Defenders (WHRD) focuses on issues affecting women during disasters. This specialization reduces duplication, as different organizations assume distinct responsibilities. For sustainability, HPP is exploring social enterprise models, approaching cooperatives, and establishing a seed fund. Plans are in place to create a company and use its profits for disaster response. "

"Within 72 hours of the Jajarkot earthquake, CARE Nepal provided lifesaving support to Nalagad, delivering 15-day food baskets, essential shelter kits, and blankets. The rapid response prioritized the needs of pregnant women, lactating mothers and the elderly, offering crucial relief during a critical time."
